HOOVER SAYS UNEMPLOYED WILL BE FED

President Pledges Unemployment Will be Coped With

Washington, Aug. 8 — (AP) — A promise to the country that next winter's unemployement problem will be successfully coped with has been made by President Hoover.

Regardless of the scope or character of unemployment needs they are to be met, the chief executive said, in announcing he had called upon all interested agencies for data on the situation in a nation-wide survey to determine the probable load of distress.

"While improvement in the situation in many directions seems promising," Mr. Hoover said in a formal statement, "the problem, whatever it may be, will be met.

"With the organized cooperation of local and state and federal authoritis, and the large number of relief and charitable organizations, the problem was successfully handled last winter.

Has Studied Problem.

For the past three weeks, the chief executive said, he had been studying the problem and had conferred with many offcials, business, financial and labor leaders and important officials of relief organizations.

The president said the figure of 6,000,000 unemployed arrived at last year was not entirely accurate and indicated that he placed little faith in the estimate as a basis for relief work.

The president explained that already many states and municipalities had begun preparations for action to meet their problems.

No mention of direct financial aid from the government was made.

Find Girl, Drugged, Beside Highway and Look For Companion

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 8 (UP)— Believed to have been drugged and then robbed by a youth from whom she is said to have accepted a "lift" to Chicago, Maureen Davis, 17, Decatur, was found in an unconscious condition beside the St. Louis highway south of here early today by Walter Moody, chief of the State highway police.

The girl was taken to St. John's hospital where she regained consciousness and is said to have told police she had accepted the invitation of a youth she knew only as "Bob" to go to Chicago last night. According to police, the girl met the man in a confectionery at Decatur.

Took Her To Springfield

Instead of going to Chicago however, the man drove here, the girl said, where they stopped for a drink. She was unable to tell a clear story of the events that followed. Police believe she was drugged.

A diamond ring valued at $100 and five dollars in cash, had been taken from her, she told police. Her purse was found near her but its contents were gone.

The girl gave police a description of her companion today and a search throughout this section of the state was started. Moody was enroute to the scene of an automobile accident when he found the girl.

Apartments of Both Mrs. Blacklidge and Accuser Are Looted

Chicago, Aug. 8—(UP)—Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge likes no-limit faro so well she once bet $50,000 on a single card, but as for bad luck, she thinks there ought to be a limit, and that she's reached it.

Mrs. Blacklidge's bad luck began when her husband and only son died a few weeks apart and she almost died of grief herself. Upon recovery she was appointed Collector of Internal Revenue at Chicago.

Then followed the famous hotel faro game at Springfield, when she lost $50,000 borrowed from Edward R. Litsinger, political leader. A scandal followed. Litsinger accused her of conspiring with the gamblers. She resigned her high position. Another serious illness followed.

Last week, her upstairs neighbor, Mrs. Cora Rowe, had her arrested, charging that "noisy parties" in the Blacklidge apartment kept her awake.

Mrs. Blacklidge claimed in court yesterday the "parties" were orderly bridge affairs. She said Mrs. Rowe was "jealous" because she too didn't have "lots of friends." The case was dismissed. Mrs. Blacklidge went home to discover her apartment had been robbed of more than $2,000 worth of jewels and finery.

"I wonder if my bad luck will ever, ever end," sighed the former collector as police checked the losses.

"Well," answered a sergeant, "if it'll make you feel any better, you weren't the only one robbed while you and Mrs. Rowe were in court. Her apartment was ransacked too. We just came up from there. She lost $700."

Americans smoked 115,379,197,000 cigarets in 1930.

Find Body Of Former Air College Head In Bushes By Roadside

St. Louis, Aug. 8—(AP)—The body of Harry P. Mammen, former president of Parks Air College, near East St. Louis, Ill., was found in a clump of weeds near U. S. Highway 66, a short distance east of Gray Summit, in Franklin county, Missouri, last night. Mammen, widely known as a promoter, had been missing from his home in suburban Clayton since Wednesday.

A widespread search was instituted for Mammen after the finding of his motor car on the highway Thursday. Beside the body was an ordinary soft drink bottle and a tumbler. The bottom of the tumbler was covered with a powdery substance, official said. No marks of violence were found on the body. An inquest will be held.

GERMAN DIPLOMATS AND MUSSOLINI IN COMPLETE ACCORD

Need For World Disarmament Agreed; Il Duce To Visit Berlin

Rome, Aug. 8 —(UP)— Six hours of conferences between Germany's and Italy's leading statesmen here resulted today in agreement on economic points and the need for world disarmament, and acceptance by Premier Mussolini of an invitation to visit Berlin.

Everyone concerned emphasized that the 36-hour Rome visit of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Foreign Minister Julius Curtius had culminated in perfect Italo-German cordiality.

As the conversations of yesterday and today came to an end, Mussolini received representatives of the German press and expressed pleasure over the results of his meeting with Bruening and Curtius.

"Germany has within itself the force to adjust itself to present difficulties," he said. "At peoples have passed moments even more difficult than those of the present, some emerging evn strongr.

Praises German Morale

"The present situation is not so difficult, by a great deal, as many others are experiencing except in the matter of finance. German economic force is not lost. When it is considered that her potential ability still remains, and even more, when the great German morale of other even more difficult moments is recalled, this is enough to make me an optimist.

"Fascism desires peace. This is the political and economic order of the day."

The Duce said Italy will make every effort to collaborate with all countries to restore economic balance.

Mussolini's projected visit to Berlin, which was announced today after an invitation from his present German guests, will be his first trip outside Italy since 1925, when he attended the Locarno conference.

An official communique said:

"In the course of the conversations of Premier Mussolini, Chancellor H. Bruening, Dr. Curtius and Minister Grandi, the general European situation was discussed exhaustively and those present unanimously recognized the necessity for active and confident collaboration by all governments to overcome the present crisis.

"It was equally agreed that there was need to make every effort to produce favorable and effective results at the next disarmament conference in the interests of peace and the economic and moral life of the world."

Mussolini will return Bruening's visit in September, going to Berlin directly at the conclusion of the projected visit there of Premier Laval, of France, it was announced at the conclusion of today's conference.

Injured Bandit In Serious Condition

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 8—(UP)—Police and prosecutors of three states hovered near the bedside of Gus Winkler, erstwhile henchman of Fred (Killer) Burke, awaiting fulfillment of his promesi to "tell all" today.

District Attorney Max Towle of Lincoln, Neb. was reported in Illinois today rounding up witnesses to bring here tomorrow seeking to connect Winkler with a $2,500,000 bank robbery in Lincoln. He, too hopes to be in on the "tell all" conference.

Meanwhile Winkler and his companion, John R. Moran, in their illfated flight before a state trooper's cruiser, lay in hospital under guard so gravely injured that holdup victims have been unable to make positive identification. Both may die, it was said at the hospital.

Efforts to check up on the record of Moran, whom Winkler refused to identify beyond saying he was a St. Louis bookmaker, developed today, police said, that he had jumped bond at Belleville, Ill., on a charge of robbery armed. He also is wanted here on bad check charges on which he jumped bond last week.

Winkler is sought in connection with robberies of banks and other holdups in several states.

He revealed today that "Crane Neck" Nugent, his former running mate, was dead.

"He got in the way and some of the boys took care of him," Winkler explained.

Diamond Rests Case Without Testifying

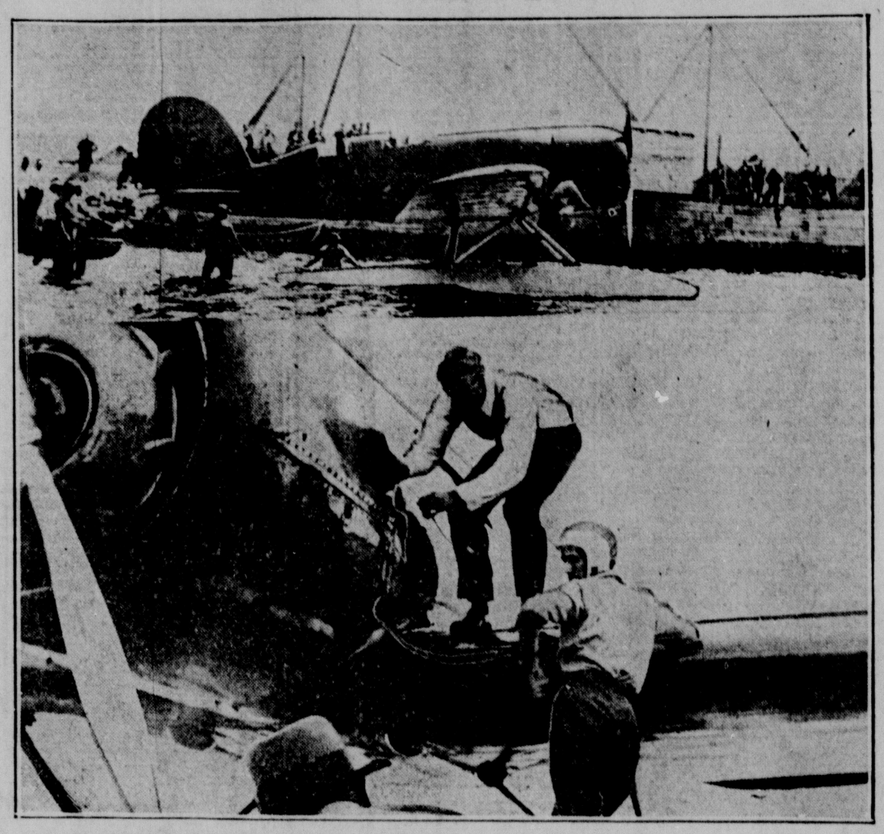

New York, Aug. 8—(UP)—The defense in the trial of Jack (Legs) Diamond, racketeer, and his lieutenant, Paul Quattrochi, rested today, contenting itself with an alibi in its effort to beat government charges of a prohibition conspiracy.

Diamond, who is known in the underworld as the jackal or bullying type, did not venture onto the stand. Instead he choose to end his defense after presenting documents to show his presence in a hospital victim of enemy guns or abroad at the time he was accused of building up a beer business in the Catskill mountain summer resort territory.

The character witnesses testified for Quattrochi this forenoon.

Four women and one man are at Gris Nez, France, training for attempts to swim the English channel this summer.

METHODIST BOARD ASSAILS MABEL IN TEMPERANCE PAPER

Blame Mrs. Willebrandt For Legalizing Fruit Juice Sales

Washington, Aug. 8—(AP)— Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant Attorney General, and the government have been assailed by the Methodist Board of Temperance for their actions in connection with the sale of grape concentrates convertible into wines by home treatment.

The attack was made in an article in "The Voice," a board publication, which said it was disconcerting that Mrs. Willebrandt, formerly in charge of the Federal prohibition enforcement division of the justice department, should become counsel for Fruit Industries, Ltd., manufacturers of the concentrates.

U. S. Aids Wine Makers

Through loans from the Farm Board, the article said, the government was accused of fostering a nation-wide industry in partially manufactured wines. It added that it would be difficult to surpress the "traffic" since the government would not find it easy to obtain warrants for the search of homes.

"It may well be," the board said, "that it may be necessary to amend the Volstead act requiring that fruit juices be protected from fermentation before being sold."

Recalling that Mrs. Willebrandt had raised an "eloquent voice" in Methodist conferences and in the council of dry leaders, the board declared:

"She it is through whom the government has been won to this benevolent attitude toward a traffic so inimical to temperance. She it is who has convinced the government that this traffic is not in fact a violation of the terms of the Volstead act."

World's Largest Airship Nearly Completed For U. S. Navy

Akron, O., Aug. 8 —(AP)— This city and many thousands of visitors joined with officials of the United States Navy in the celebration here today of one of the most important events in the history of aeronautics, the launching and christening of the world's largest airship, the "Akron."

The new dirigible, as long as several city blocks, and as high as a 15-story building, was to be christened this afternoon by Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the President. At the same time, it was to be freed from its cradle and floated about 40 feet along the interior of the giant hangar which has covered it during the two years it has been under construction.

A crowd of 100,000 persons was expected to attend the ceremonies at the Akron municipal airport. The program, similar to the launching and christening of a battleship, was to begin at 2.30 P. M.

This huge ship was built by the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation for the Navy.

To Release Homing Pigeons

Mrs. Hoover was to christen the ship by pulling a cord to release a flock of homing pigeons, nestled in a hatch in the nose of the dirigible. A 100-piece band wil play the "Star Spangled Banner" while a chorus of 500 voices will sing.

Speakers besides Mrs. Hoover were to include Paul W. Litchfield, President of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation, Real Admiral William A Moffett, Chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, and David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy in charge of aeronautics.

The christening and launching in the afternoon will be followed by a banquet tonight for 900 persons.

LINDBERGH IS HALF WAY NOW ON HIS FLIGHT

Reaches Point Barrow on Vacation Flight to the Orient

Following Fliers

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This is how the major airplane flights stood today:

Col and Mrs. Lindbergh reached Point Barrow, Alaska, northernmost point of United States territory ,on their vacation flight to Japan.

Parker D. Cramer, charting an airmail route across the Arctic, was at the Faroe Islands, preparing to go on to Bergen, Norway, thence to Copenhagen.

Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr. remained at Tokyo while the authorities debated the extent of their culpability in flying over fortified areas.

Russell Boardman and John Polando were still at Istanbul, making no announcement of their future plans.

The DO-X continued her leisurely flight up from South America to the United States.

BULLETIN

London, Aug. 8 —(AP)— An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen today said Parker D. Cramer, who reached the Faroe Islands last night on a flight from the United States, took off at noon for Bergen, whence he will proceed to Copenhagen tomorrow.

LINDBERGH HALF WAY

Point Barrow, Alaska, Aug. 8 (AP) — Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, the flying vacationists, and their speedy monoplane arrived here today in the shadow of the Arctic ice pack, at America's most northern outpost, 320 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

Through low lying fog banks which shrouded their way, Colonel Lindbergh piloted his plane from Aklavik, N. W. T., last night and set it down on a lead of open water at 2 A. M., Pacific Standard Time, (5 A. M. E. S. T.). The hop of 536 miles along the shores of the Beaufort Sea and Arctic Ocean was made in six hours and 30 minutes.

Enthusiasm in this little community, a handful of whites and several hundred Eskimos, burst forth as the glistening low-winged monoplane was sighted in the eastern sky.

Cheers rang out from groups on several high points of land in the community and they rushed to the water front to await the mooring of the plane and the coming of the flier and his diminutive wife to the shore.

On their flight, with the few hours of darkness overtaking them and a heavy fog bank hiding the earth from them for an hour, Mrs. Lindbergh was in almost constant communication with the radio station here and at Aklavik.

Flew Through Fog

At midnight, a message said they had just emerged from flying through an hour of fog. Another hour and a half later had told of Col. Lindbergh's turning the plane inland from the ocean to find better weather.

Within a few minutes after their arrival Dr. Henry Griest, medical missionary, put out to the pontooned plane in a small boat to extend the official welcome. Natives in skin boats jostled their craft nearby.

The plane was moored safely in short time and Col. Lindbergh and his wife came ashore and were taken to the manse of Dr. Griest.

There were no gasoline supplies here, and such every-day staples as coffee. potatoes, eggs and tobacco were all used up several weeks ago. No ship had arrived through the ice this season to replenish them, but native foods and delicacies were ready in large quantities.

With half of their 7,000 mile aerial jaunt to the Orient completed, the distinguished aviator and his wife were uncertain just when they would continue their flight or how they would refuel.

The ice pack had locked this port for ten months and supplies of gasoline for Lindbergh which left Nome several weeks ago on the cutter Northland were still aboard the vessel, ice-bound off Icy Cape, 100 miles to the southwest.

CRAMER AT FAROE ISLANDS

Thorshavn, Faroe Islands, Aug. 8 —(AP)— Parker D. Cramer, American flier charting an airmail route across the North Atlantic, brought his plane down in a bay off the nearby island of Suderoe last night. He announced today he would take off as soon as possible for Bergen and would reach Copenhagen from there Sunday afternoon.

He came down in the ocean between here and Reykjavik in the night and there were reports that he had been forced down by engine trouble, but the flier said this morning he had not been obliged to land but had done so partly to test the seaworthiness of his ship.

The plane is in good condition, ready for a resumption of the flight.

Frank Fitzsimmons Told About Dixon Over Station WLS

Over station WLS, Attorney Frank Fitzsimmons, formerly of Dixon and the son of John Fitzsimmons and a brother of Royal of Dixon, assisted in the Swift & Co., broadcast Friday noon. Mr. Fitzsimmons, who is president of the Notre Dame club of Chicago, attended school here and spent his boyhood days in Dixon where he has many friends. His name was suggested by Edward Valle of Dixon.

Mr. Fitzsimmons told of the beautiful little town of Dixon snuggled in the hills in the valley of the swiftly moving picturesque Rock River. He told of the beauty of the region in general and of beauty spots in particular; of Dixon's Ferry and Father Dixon, (White Hair as the Indians called him). He told of the Indians who roamed these valleys and hills and the mounds or graves of these Indians which may be found in many sections in this community. Mr. Fitzsimmons told of the many factories and industries in Dixon, proving the town useful as well as ornamental. Many commercial men make this town their home as it is a delightful place in which to live.

The WLS Quartet gave several excellent numbers.

Biggest Air Liner Damaged In Crash

Croydon, Eng., Aug. 8 —(UP)—The 2200-horsepower air liner, Hannibal, one of the world's largest and most luxurious, crashed near Tonbridge today carrying 18 passengers enroute to Paris. None was seriously injured.

The crash was the result of simultaneous failure of two of the four engines. The wing and the undercarriage were smashed.

The liner has been hailed as one of the costliest and largest in regular transport service. Its estimated cost was $175,000, and its weight is 13 tons.

The Imperial Airways issued a communique of the crash of the air liner, asserting none of the passengers was injured. The statement said all passengers would proceed by automobile to Lympne air port, and another plane would take them to Paris.

DRINKS HIS PANTS

Chicago, Aug. 8 —(AP)— Dennis Cronin has just drunk up his fourth pair of trousers, his mother, Mrs. Hanna Cronin complained.

Dennis was found the other day, with his trousers missing. Yesterday he was in Judge Erickson's court, with an explanation.

"You see, judge," said he, "Two men held me up and stole my pants'

"That is not the truth," interrupted his mother. "Everytime he feels a spree coming on, he sells his pants for a bottle. It is the fourth pair he has drunk."

Thejudge gave him thirty days.

THE SHORTER THE BETTER .. ROME STARTS HOUSEKEEPING

Rome—(UP)—The municipality of Rome has started the customary antiques of the city from the plague nual cleaning of the monuments and of weeds which infests them. Weeds grow with extraordinary fertility in the cracks and crannies of obelisks, statues and church facades here. As soon as the wind deposits a little dust into a likely crevice of some ancient monument, weeds begin to grow. The work of keeping the monuments clean from these parasitical growths costs the municipality many thousand lire a year.

PAUL RADER WILL TALK IN DIXON ON SUNDAY EVENING

Famous Evangelist Will Be At Assembly Park Auditorium

Last night at the Assembly Park Auditorium, Dr. Wm. B. Hogg, chaplain of the Chicago Gospel Tabernacle Breakfast Brigade, gave his farewell address to a large group of Dixon friends. At the close of the service, a great mass of well-wishers came up to greet Dr. Hogg, but it was necessary for him to catch a train and so he could not be detained.

Tonight the Mason Jubilee Singers will be back for a limited engagement and we feel sure that those who have not already heard these singers will avail themselves of this extra opportunity. These singers have traveled all over the country giving their concerts and have met with continued success.

Mrs. George Dibble is the speaker for this evening's service and you will want to hear her testimony and the message that the Lord has given her for the people of Dixon. Mrs Dibble is in evangelistic work all year and has a real, live story of the saving grace of Jesus Christ and the Lord has seen fit to use her as a fire-brand all over the nation. Come out and hear this messenger of the gospel light.

A real treat tonight for every one. Talent galore and a splendid musical program is in store.

Tomorrow night at 7:30 comes Paul Rader, just returned from his third world missionary tour, with a heart that is breaking for the salvation of lost men. Mr. Rader, due to the numerous speaking engagements which he has, is only going to be able to spend this one night with his friends and radio listeners in and around Dixon, at this time. There is a possibility, however, that he will come back for a few days later.

Tomorrow only—Paul Rader.

25 Million Held In U. S. Treasury For Railroads' Relief

Washington, Aug. 8—(AP)—Seventy-nine railroads have been assessed a total of $25,659,498.98 in excess profits for the railroad revolving fund held in the United States treasury for the benefit of less profitable lines under the recapture clause of the transportation act of 1920.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has issued earnings reports of 80 of the natton's 1189 railroads covering varying periods between March 1, 1920, and December 31, 1926. No reports have been issued covering the highly productive years between 1926 and 1930.

Seventy-eight of the reports making the assessments are tentative and subject to review and modification.

MARLENE DIETRICH DEFENDANT IN TWO LAW SUITS TODAY

Libel and Alienation Of Affections Are Charged By Director's

Los Angeles, Aug. 8—(UP)—Exotic Marlene Dietrich, German screen star whose alluring voic, face, figure and art have made the hearts of millions, including her husband, go pitty-pat, also won the heart of her director, it is charged in suits disclosed today asking $500,000 for alienation of affection.

The suits were filed in New York months ago by Mrs. Josef Von Sternberg, divorced wife of the director under whose tutelage the blonde film star placed her name in bright lights of American motion picture playhouses.

The suits were on file, in fact, before Marlene's husband, Rudolph Sieber, also a stage director, arrived in New York three weeks ago on his first visit to America—just to visit his star-wife, "the greatest cook, a beautiful cook, a fine haufrau."

Sieber looked forward with no little pleasure to the Hollywood visit. "She will fix me an eierkuchen (egg cake)" he predicted then.

Six times they talked by long distance telephone from New York to Hollywood!

Then he was met in Hollywood by Marlene and Von Sternberg.

"Me a jealous man?" Sieber queried after arrival here.

"I should say not!"

He denied talk of marital unhappiness current at that time.

"It's a family reunion. Nothing else. I'll be here four weeks, and we'll live in a house at Beverly Hills. I'm very glad to see my family."

After months of secrecy, the suit became public knowledge in domestic relations court, where Mrs. Riza Von Sternberg had haled the director to answer charges of non-payment of alimony.

Admitting his delinquency, Von Sternberg defended himself on the score that the alimony arrangement had been conditioned upon Mrs. Von Sternberg keeping the peace, a peace which he said she had broken with sundry "harassments."

Asked to detail the "harassments," Von Sternberg said his former wife had involved him in filing suits against "a certain lady." There were more questions, and "the certain lady" suddenly was named as Miss Dietrich.

Gave Her Charge Accounts?

Charging that Miss Dietrich was the cause of their divorce, Mrs. Von Sternberg added a long bill of particulars, according to copies of her complaint. Among them, she charged Miss Dietrich with having opened accounts in Von Sternberg's name in furniture and clothing stores in Los Angeles—"something he would never let me do."

Besides the alienation suit, it was disclosed, Mrs. Von Sternberg also has on file a suit charging Miss Dietrich with libel and asking $100,000 damages.

Tells of News Story

The libel suit grew out of articles assertedly written by Miss Dietrich for a Vienna newspaper syndicate, in which Mrs. Von Sternberg was accused of trying to boycott Miss Dietrich's pictures in America. The article, an asserted photostatic copy of which was displayed in court, also charged that Mrs. Von Sternberg was an undutiful wife and quoted Mrs. Von Sternberg as saying Miss Dietrich was obtaining a divorce so she could marry Von Sternberg.

None of the principals would comment on the hearing. Miss Dietrich turned on all questioners the eloquent sidelong glance that in a few months has become known wherever movies are shown.

Nothing to Say

"I can't say anything until I have seen my attorneys," she said.

Von Sternberg has been credited with discovering Miss Dietrich in Germany. He directed the blond siren in the two pictures which won her fame in this country—"Morocco" and "The Blue Angel."

Sieber told the story of his romance with Miss Dietrich when he arrived in New York. He was quoted:

"She was from school, just 17. I was an assistant director in Berlin. One day someone says can I use some pretty girls from the school I say I can always use pretty girls. And, so, six, eight months later we are married.

"And we were very happy. I know always there were great things ahead for her. Always I know that," he had added in his newly acquired English.

"Finally, she comes to America for her big chance. But she is unhappy because she is alone. So she come back with me for awhile and returns with our little girl, Maria, we call her Heidede."

Sieber is a Paramount director in Paris. He has been married to Marlene Dietrich seven years.

THE STARS AND STRIPES

WHAT nobleness, what glory you declare,
What ideals typify!
Symbolic of a friendship to mankind,
Your manner lights the the sky.

Red stripes, Assurance that before the brave
Ignoble wrongs give way:
Emblem for all of opportunity,
The dawning of a day.

White stripes! Recalling words of long ago,
The pure their God shall see,
A wide-flung truth which all the world can prove Brings joy and liberty.

Blue fields with stars of white! True brotherhood,
The world in unity;
A pledge to all mankind of helpfulness
And unselfed charity.
Your blended whole checks evil's forward march,
And bids its hosts stand still;
Your hold the promise of a world at peace,
"To all mankind good will."

Glorifying Yourself—

Hands tell the story of your restlessness, your worries, your conquests.

Nothing but the mouth can tell the world so much about you. Your eyes you can guard. But your hands have an unconscious trick of giving you away.

And don't think they hold back on telling your age!

Far from it! Some women spend much time erasing wrinkles from their faces, smoothing crows' feet around the eyes and patting and molding in nourishing creams, and then do nothing for their hands. They of course retaliate in a mean way by telling the truth.

Hands that have passed 35 need definite daily care. They should have been having it from 25 on. Prevention is always worth more than a cure. But you can make your hands reach out to beauty, if you want to, but a few years shouldn't stop you.

Hands that are dry and wrinkled need oils, nourishing creams, massages, cooling youthifiers, just as the face needs them. Many of them have different ingredients from facial creams. But you do not need to buy a lot of extra things. Begin with what you have. You can be sure that if it is made for your face it can't hurt your hands.

Astringents should be used on the oily hands. Sweaty hands should be treated to one of the new anti-perspiration lotions. They should be exercised to increase proper circulation. And when you go out, you should make them up a little bit, with powder base and powder dusted over them, and a little touch of good perfumery. It gives them self-respect, sets them up!

In addition to these creams, the make up and the astringents, you should massage your hands thoroughly exercise them, use a complexion brush on them and all in all put them through a fortnight's course of sprouts just to try out what you can do for them.

If you freckle terribly, don't be above wearing gloves in the hot sun. They are stylish this summer. And freckles are hard to get out. Better use some freckle prevention instead, if it is not too late.

Get hand-conscious. That is the only way you will be interested enough to do something to beautify them. Put your hands out for beauty!

For The Dinner Belle

Elegance joins informality in the most striking manner in this distinguished dining-at-home gown of black striped chiffon, made over pink satin, from Hawes, Inc.

It solves one of the hardest problems in the world—that of selecting the perfect gown when you are a hostess to dinner guests who may come in formal or informal attire. For its cute flaring little sleeves and modest neckline belie its trailing long skirt, and give it a dual character that makes it eminently suitable for a home hostess.

The striped chiffon is used interestingly, going vertically in front and back panels, horizontally in the body of the dress and diagonally through the flaring section of the skirt and the shoulders.

Prince of Wales Fooled 'Em Again!!

London, Aug. 8 —(UP)— Royal match makers who would see the Prince of Wales wed, were stumped again today, it appeared.

The Daily Mail said the engagement of Lady May Cambridge, whose name often has been linked with that of the heir to the British throne, to Capt. Henry Abel Smith, is to be formally announced soon.

In offcial quarters it was asserted that the reports of Lady May's engagement to marry Captain Smith could be "neither confirmed nor denied."

Coincidentally, it was announced that Lady May and her parents plan to leave for Holland tonight.

Lady May, a niece of Queen Mary's is the daughter of the Earl of Athlone. Captain Smith was aide-decamp to the Earl when he was governor-general of South Africa.

The Prince of Wales and Lady May long had been coupled in rumors of romance in British society. On various occasions their close friendship had seemed to lend credence to the otherwise unfounded reports.

The reports of a possible bethrothal were fostered by the beauty of the English girl, her attraction for the Prince, and the desire of the British public for the heir to the throne to marry. Nevertheless, the rumors which presisted were denied repeatedly and at last apparently have been definitely ended.

The Earl of Athlone is a brother of the Queen. He relinquished his title as Prince during the war and become the first Marquis of Athlone.

Princess Alice is Lady May's mother, only daughter of Queen Victoria's youngest son, the Duke of Albany. Lady May is their eldest daughter. She is 25.

LET'S THINK SAFETY.

It is perfectly obvious that no one would deliberately drive an automobile into a lamp-post, or into another machine or over a pedestrian. It is also apparent we value ur lives too dearly to drive a car in such a way as to endanger ourselves.

Yet accidents do happen, lives are lost and limbs broken. More persons died from automobile accidents last year than during any year previous to 1930. The death toll threatens to go even higher this year.

If, as can't be denied, none of us want to risk our life in an accident, why this ever-increasing toll? The answer is simple. We just don't think.

We fail to give heed to the many warnings that face us as we drive through streets and highways. We pay little or no attention to neighborhood speed limits, to playing children, to pedestrians. We overlook the fact that every driver on the street has as much right to drive as we have.

We simply forget all these and other things which go to make up security on the road. We fail to think safety.

Yet to think safety is to pay strict attention to what we are doing while at the wheel, to heed signs and signals, to remember that a child playing on the sidewalk is liable at the next moment to dart into the street in front of us, to watch the pedestrian at the corner and to give the other driver a break.

Thinking safety includes not only thinking about our own lives, while driving or walking. It concerns our thoughts for others. It controls intelligently our lust for speed and the selfish pleasures of joy-riding. It prevents recklessness which has caused so many accidents. And it acts as a leash to all our other personal reactions.

Were all of us to think safety as we drove, or as we walked, there would be hardly an accident in our streets. For figures of motor vehicle accidents in the United States point to the fact that only 15 per cent of the deaths can be traced to defects in the vehicles concerned.

Failing to afford the right of way to the proper driver, exceeding the speed limit, driving on the wrong side of the road, it is found have caused most accidents. All three are results of failing to think safety.

Let us think safety, therefore, and the accident rate on our streets will be cut down effectively.

BAKING SQUARE PIES.

Members of the Ohio Bakers Association, convening at Toledo recently, are discussing plans for the baking of square pies. This, they say, would make it possible for more pies to be baked in one oven and would result in welcome economies.

Consumers of pie really ought to get behind the movement, too. The square pie is really not new. There have been rural housewives in various parts of the country who have baked square pies for years; and anyone who has ever eaten one will testify to the advantages which the square pie offers.

The real pie enthusiast knows that the tastiest part of the pie is the knobby, flaky portion where upper and lower crusts are joined together; and in the square pie there is just about twice as much of this as in the round one. If the bakers are going to promote square pies, pie-eaters will be owing them a vote of thanks.

IBANEZ GOES OUT.

The overthrow of President Ibanez of Chile brings to an end a period of military dictatorship under which the southern republic has labored for a good many years. During Ibanez's tenure of office Chile was only nominally a republic; actually it was a monarchy, with an imitation Mussolini on the throne.

Conditions in Chile should be measurably better now that Ibanez has been ousted. A constitutional government has been set up, and the indications are that it will endure. Friends of democracy everywhere will hope so.

Ibanez's downfall is probably another evidence of the power of economic depression. In prosperous times dictators usually get along swimmingly. When business goes stagnant, however, people get restless. Ibanez could have held on for quite a while longer if trade had not gone for a toboggan ride.

Three things men will have in good times or bad. Yes, four; to-wit: Female beauty to inspire the mind, tobacco to soothe it, a little something to stimulate it and a few shares on margin to give it hope.—Florenz Ziegfeld.

Variations in temperature induce greater resistance to disease and also favor mental activity.—Dr. Ellsworth Huntington.

It is easy to stand hard times because that is the only thing you can do.—George Horace Lorimer.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by ERNEST

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The great big fish that had been hooked was now on deck and, my, it looked really funny as it flopped around. "What is it?" Scouty cried "A jewfish and a huge one too. Of that size I have seen but few. There is lots of food upon that fish." the Travel Man replied.

And then they watched some more fish being caught and hauled aboard The seaman taught the Tinies how to pull them in. It was lots of fun. By now it was real late afternoon. One man said, "We are quitting soon. You Tinies better row to shore. Our fishing day is done."

The Tinies thanked the men and went into their rowboat. There they spent a little while at rowing around and then they reached the shore. That night they all slept in a hut where everything was quiet but the sound of waves upon the beach. My, how the waves did roar.

Next morning as the sun arose the wee Tinymites jumped in their Clothes and then the Travel Man said, "We are going to leave today. To old Tahiti we are bound and there some new sights will be found. It is on the Society Islands." They were soon on their way.

This time the boat they took was grand. Soon Clowny met a kind deckhand who showed them all around the ship, from top deck to the hold. "On this boat I just love to ride." said Coppy. "It is warm inside the cabins, but out on the deck it is really cold."

They all enjoyed the trip a lot. Soon Scouty cried, "Gee! I can spot the island through these fine glasses, and we will very shortly dock." And he was right. The ship pulled in. The Tinies landed with a grin, and gazed along a busy wharf that ran block after block.

(The Tinymites hear some native songs in the next story.)

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY OF

RUSSIAN MILITARY REPORT

On August 8, 1917, the causes of the military collapse in Russia were set forth in a report by Colonel Kolotkoff, to the Council of Workmen's and Soldier's Delegates. He placed the responsibility on the former policemen, gendarmes and spies of Emperor Nicholas at the front.

The army on the west front, according to Kolotkoff, was in excellent fighting trim technically, and was far beyond criticism as re gards supplies. There was a plan to advance which might have led to the capture of Vilna, but spies of the autocracy started a counter-revolutionary campaign against the provisional government, the aim of which was to break up the army.

Large numbers of spies managed to get elected to company committees, and started a propaganda against the war, inciting soldiers against officers and the provisional gavernment's commissaries.

Germany took advantage of these conditions and flooded Russian army trenches with spies in Russian uniform. Many of these Germans spoke Russian so well that they sat at the Officers' mess without arousing suspicion. The result of all this was that the attempt was started to recover Vilna many soldiers, completely Germanized in sentiment, refused to participate in the attack.

Baseball Gossip

By HUGH S. FULLERTON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

One of the great contrasts in baseball is found in the first and seventh place teams of the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals and the Phillies. For a couple of years the Phils have been considered as a great team except for its pitching staff, while the Cards have put the mound work a bit above the other departments of play.

This year, a less lively ball was expected to bring some sort of a change in the results, but the Phils continue to belt the ball at a great rate without getting anywhere in the standing while the Cardinal murlers have put St. Louis far ahead.

It took a great exhibiting of hitting by Chuck Klein, star slugger display by Clarance Mitchell to give the Phils, and a dismal pitching Philadelphia a 13 to 5 victory over the New York Giants yesterday. Meanwhile the Cards, with about the same amount of hitting, coasted through to an easy 8 to 0 triumph over the Chicago Cubs, behind the expert mound work of Burleigh Grimes.

Mitchell handed the Phillies four walks and three hits in the first inning to give them a five run start Later Klein clouted his 25th and 26th home runs of the season to drive in four more counters. And Philadelphia needed most of these runs as Phil Collins gave the Giants 16 hits. Grimes, on the other hand, blanked Chicago with only seven hits and the Cardinals bunched seven safeties off Pat Malone in the first three innings to score as many runs.

Grime's victory, his 14th of the season, put the Cards eight games ahead of the second place Cubs and nine up on the Giants.

Brooklyn got some great pitching from Hollis Thurston for eight innings but it didn't last through the ninth and they lost a 3 to 2 decision to the Boston Braves. Thurston gave only three hits in eight frames then yielded two more and the first Boston run in the ninth. Jack Quinn replaced him and allowed Billy Urbanski to double with the bases ful.

Pittsburgh's Pirates settled the fourth National crash in short order when they fell on Red Lucas and Owen Carroll of Cincinnati for seven runs in the first inning and went on to trouce the Reds 9 to 3. Five of the eight first-inning hits were doubles.

The Chicago White Sox, with Urban Faber on the mound, chalked up their ninth victory in 14 games with the St. Louis Browns by puling a 2 to 0 victory out of a tight pitching duel. Each team made only five hits but the 43 year old Faber pitched so expertly that he never was in danger while he helped his own game along with a double in the third inning that led to the second Chicago run.

The other American League teams had an open date.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Burleigh Grimes, Cardinals—Blanked Cubs, 8-0, with seven hits.

Billy Urbanski, Braves—Doubled with bases filled in ninth to drive in tying and winning runs against Robins.

Pie Traynor, Pirates—Collected a double and three singles off Red pitching.

Uuban Faber, White Sox—Limited Browns to five scattered singles to win, 2 to 0.

Chuck Klein, Phillies—Drove in four runs against Giants with 25th and 26th home runs and a single.

CARDINALS HAVE HUNCH

St. Louis, Aug. 8 —(AP)— Burleigh Grimes, the ageing but still effective spit-baller, visions a world championship just around the corner for the St. Louis Cardinals. The baseball world has made the Athletics a favorite, but old Burleigh just can't see it that way.

"Sure, there's one way we can lose," Burleigh explained. "If we don't hit, we can't win. If we don't make runs, we can't win. But let us make a few runs and we'll knock them over in a hurry. Grove! Pooh! Say, he's got 'em scared to death in that league. Who's he got to beat? We beat him last year, didn't we? And he'll be duck soup for us this October. And now about Earnshaw? I guess he'll have another streak like he had last year? I guess not.

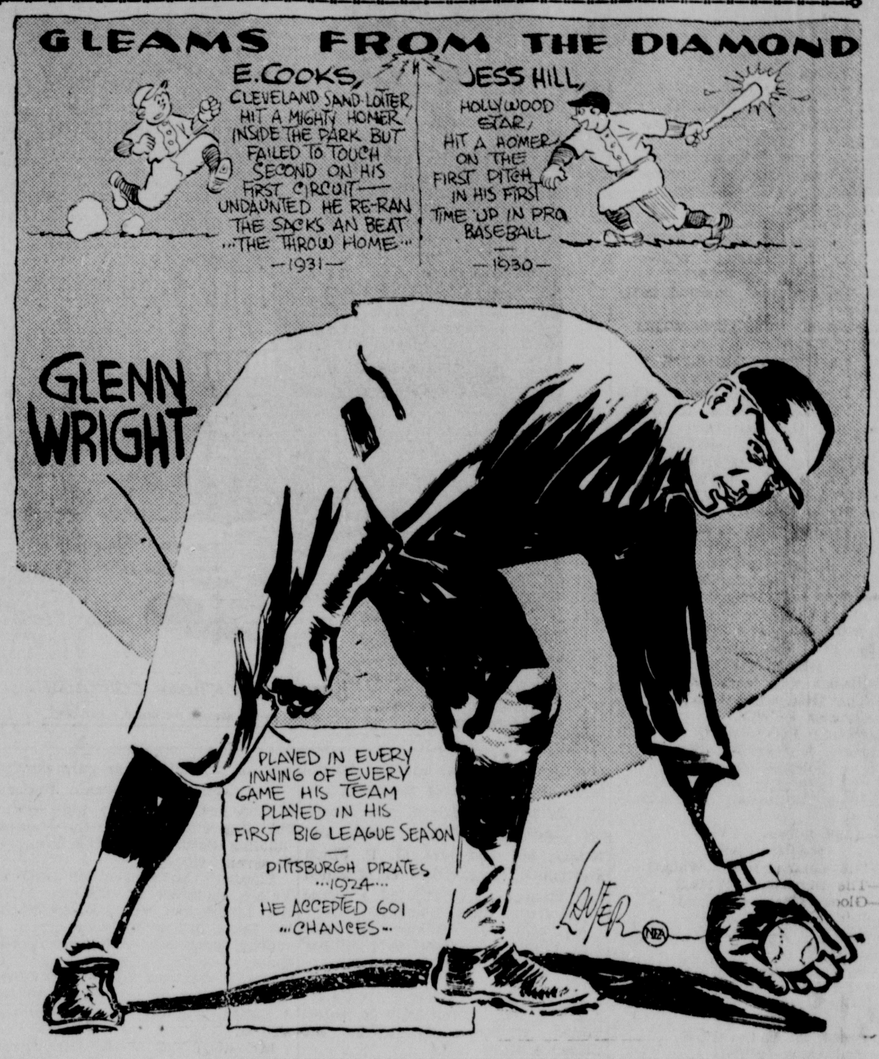

"Say, the Athletics had a tough time winning last year and Simmons and Cochrane and Foxx got a flock of hits. What if they don't hit every time they come up?

"The baseball world seems to take it for granted that the Athletics can't be beat. I expect the Cardinals to beat 'em and to give 'em such a trouncing so easily it will be funny. We'll show 'em more pitching, too, than they've seen all year."

"This season we'll have a chance to relax and get ready for the big battle. Last year we fought right down to the wire, wiped the sweat from our faces and went right back to the wars, meeting the Macks. That was a tough assignment."

Other members of the Cardinals, while they haven't reasoned it out as much as Grimes, has, also have "a hunch" the supremacy of the American League over the National will end in October, the Cardinals, of course, turning the trick.

RED ASKS NO FAVORS

Chicago, Aug. 8—(AP)—He has been around so long that they have started calling him "Uncle Urban", and he is the dean of American League pitchers, but Red Faber of the White Sox is asking no favors this season—and is giving none.

The veteran from Cascade, Ia., the last of the American League's spitball pitchers and one of the few users of that delivery in the game, yesterday pitched one of the best games of his career in shutting out the St. Louis Browns with five singles. That is not all he has done this unhappy Sox season.

Faber for the past two seasons was used almost exclusively as a relief hurler. Several weeks ago, however, the pitching situation became so acutely feeble, that Manager Donie Bush was forced to ask Faber to take a regular turn in the box. He responded—working with as little as four days of rest. On the recent eastern trip he hit a stride not expected of his 43-year-old frame, and today had a record of six victories and eight defeats. Three of the victories have been collected since he became a regular again, and three of the defeats were caused by poor support.

Faber joined the White Sox in 1914, and had his best season in 1915 when he won 24 games and lost 13. He pitched winning baseball every season until 1924 when he won nine and dropped 11 decisions. He won 25 games while losing 15 in 1921, and during the past two campaigns broke even on the season.

He was the pitching hero of the 1917 World Series when the White Sox won four games to two for the New York Giants. Faber pitched four games and won three of them to help the Sox to their last world championship.

STREET SIGNED AGAIN

St. Louis, Aug. 8—(AP)— The "Old Sergeant", Charles E. (Gabby) Street, who came to the St. Louis Cardinals in 1929 with the title of second coach, but in reality "chaperon" of Grover Cleveland Alexander, has won himself a more or less permanent job as manager of a ball team known in the past for the uncertain tenure of its managers.

Gabby will lead the Cardinals again next year, his third at the helm of the National League champions.

In announcing last night that Street has signed a one-year contract "and both of us are perfectly satisfied with the terms," President Sam Breadon said the manager's "judgment, ability and courage have been proved day after day and week after week" since 1929. Breadon said the Cardinal's 8-game lead over the second-place Cubs did not influence his decision to reappoint Street.

Street became chief aid to Bill McKechnie before the 1929 pennant race ended and moved up to Manager when McKechnie went to the Boston Braves.

Breadon's announcement came somewhat as a surprise, since only yesterday he said "I have nothing to say now" regarding his 1932 manager.

BROWNS DEFEAT ASHTON WHITES HERE LAST EVE

Pitchers Battle Marked Benefit Game For Goodfellows

The Whites, a fast team from Ashton, lost a hard fought game to the West End Browns at Independent field last evening.

The Ashton players, dressed in white and tennis shoes, were a snappy team and played a real game. It was a pitchers battle between Busker of the winners and Wisman of the losers, the former keeping seven hits well scattered and the latter only giving up five.

Wisman and Vaupel ran together in short right field in the fourth to rob Noakes of a hit and keep the Browns from scoring as there were two men on base and two out.

The Browns play Kable Bros. Kitten ball team Sunday at Independent field, and they will go to Ashton, next Friday for a return game with Ashton there. Score:

Sports Parade

By HENRY McLEMORE
United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, Aug. 8 —(UP)— Tremendous fighting heart, and not the year-around practice and sound professional instruction they receive is, in our opinion, the principal reason California players dominate tennis today.

We came to this conclusion after watching Miss Helen Jacobs and Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper win over almost insurmountable odds, in the opening day of play in the Wightman Cup matches. And their superb display of what it takes when the game is roughest recalled the heart-stopping battle staged by another California, Ellsworth Vines, in his final round fight with Johnny Doeg at Seabright a week ago.

In each instance this trio faced defeat not once, not twice, not thrice, but half a dozen times or more. And on each occasion the close-up of defeat served only to make these stout-hearted far westerners lift their games another octave, smack the ball a little harder, and keep moving into the attack a little faster.

Forest Hills historic turf has seen few more corageous stands than those made by Miss Jacobs and Mrs. Harper in their matches against Miss Nuthall and Miss Round yesterday.

You could have written your own ticket on Miss Jacobs' chances against Miss Nuthall when the English ace led five games to one in the first set. The California girl, her game literally smashed to bits by Miss Nuthall's relentless drive, seemed hopeessly out of the running. Yet, just when it seemed that nothing could save her from overwhelming defeat Miss Jacobs started into her attack and the fury of that attack brought her booming out of nowhere to victory.

Mrs. Harper's third-set stand against Miss Round was even more heroic for the Oakland southpaw had to come from behind after blowing a four game lead. Moreover, Mrs. Harper is a slender, fragile sort of person and was all but "in" when she started the final set. Yet, despite her utter weariness of leg and arm, she staved off game, set and match point no less than five times.

Report of a come-back by Jack Dempsey makes us wonder what the old Massa Mauler plans to use for legs. The last time we saw Jack was just after he finished refereeing a ten round bout about as fresh as last years flowers.

Benny Leonard, another of those come-back chaps, held his first public workout last night and had his nose smashed by a flyweight. This must have proved a great humiliation to the man who trounced such fighters as Charlie White, Lew Tendler, Johnny Kilbane and Jask Britton without even so much as mussing his hair.

Boston Heavyweight Barred From Minn.

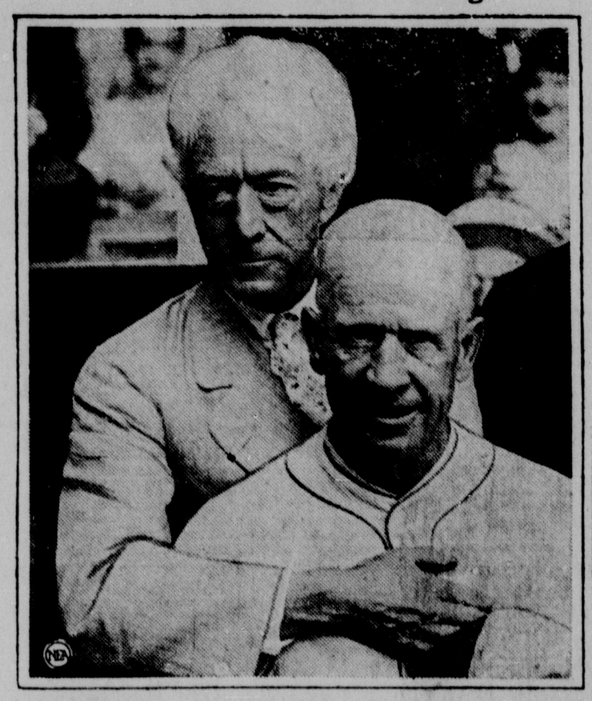

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 8 —(UP)— Ricardo Bertazzolo, Boston heavyweight who won 22 of his first 32 fights by knockouts, was barred today from fighting again in Minnesota because of his poor showing last night in a fight with Charles Retzlaff of Duluth.

Retzlaff, whose string of knockouts has been even more impressive than Bertazollo's was awarded the fight in the second round after Bertazollo had been on the floor three times.

Referee Ed Shave said Bertazollo went down all three times from blows on the shoulders and he apparently was not hurt. After the third knockdown, Shave counted with one hand urging Bertazollo with the other to get up, but the big Italian would not budge, so Shave stopped at eight and raised Retzlaff's hand.

The State Boxing Commission met immediately after the fight and allowed Bertazzo's his purse but barred him from future bouts. It was predicted other member states of the N. B. A. would take similar action.

QUEEN HELEN IS LEADING TEAM TO CERTAIN VICTORY

American Women Expected To Clinch Wightman Cup Play Today

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 8—(UP)—Great Britain's Wightman Cup team was faced with an apparently insurmountable handicap today in its attempt to retain possession of the prized women's international tennis trophy.

Trailing three matches to none as the result of the opening day's competition, the British invaders must win all of today's four matches to retain the cup which they won, 4 to 3, at Wimbledon last year.

With Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, ably supported by another Californian, Helen Jacobs, playing in the singles matches, even the most optimistic British supporters have little hopes of retaining the trophy.

Mrs. Moody is scheduled to play Miss Betty Nuthall in today's opening singles match and this match doubtless will give the United States its fourth victory and the series. Miss Jacobs will play the remaining singles match against Miss Phyllis Mudford and ranks a strong favorite to win.

England is condeded the advantage in the doubles and is expected to take both matches. Mrs. Moody and Mrs. L. A. Harper will represent the United States in the first doubles match against Mrs. Elleen Bennett Whittingstall and Miss Betty Nuthall, with Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman and Miss Sarah Palfrey of Boston opposing Mrs. D. C. Shepherd-Barron and Miss Mudford in the closing competition of the seven match series.

Queen Helen Won Easily

Yesterday's play was featured by Mrs. Moody's brilliant 6-1, 6-4, victory over Miss Mudford. Mrs. Moody's triumph was achieved with almost ridiculous ease. Miss Mudford never had a chance and Queen Helen won as she pleased.

The other two matches were hard fought with Mrs. Jacobs defeating Miss Betty Nuthall, 8-6, 6-4, and Mrs. L. A. Harper of Oakland, Cal., scoring a 6-3, 4-6,9-7 triumph over Miss Dorothy Round.

Miss Jacobs' victory over the No. 1 British player was one of the most sensational matches in the nine years of Wightman Cup competition. Miss Nuthall got away to a 5 to 1 lead, but Miss Jacobs rallied to tie the set at five all.She dropped the next set but then took the next three games with the loss of but five points to win the set. She won the second set with little trouble.

The Mrs. Harper-Miss Round match also was closely contested. Miss Round was badly off her game in the first set but found her stroke in the second when Mrs. Harper slumped.

Mrs. Harper started the final set by winning four consecutive games but Miss Round rallied, tied the match at 5 all and then took the lead at 6-5. She was at match point five times, but Mrs. Harper staved off defeat and finally broke through to win in the sixteenth game.

GOVERNMENT IS CALLED UNFAIR IN DEPORTATION

Wickersham Commission's Report Calls Labor Dept. Despotic

Washington, Aug. 8 —(UP)— The federal government was confronted today with a Wickersham Commission charge that it is despotic and frequently unfair in administration of alien deportation laws. Some phases of the law were condemned.

Secretary of Labor Doak replied today that "every effort had been made to correct administrative abuses."

President Hoover and Doak were known to be deeply concerned over the commission's finding that the deportation system as has subjected aliens to "oppression, unfairness and hardship." The report has been in Mr. Hoover's possession since May 27 but was not made public until today.

Doak says in his formal reply that the data upon which the Wickersham ommission based its report was gathered by "an observer without experience in the practical field of deportation."

(Reuben Oppenheimer, Baltimore, Md., attorney, investigated deportation problems for the commission.) Doak adds:

"The major point is that the American people have a right to deport criminal aliens, and aliens who have come illegally into this country. I know of no more important work before the country than to rid itself of alien criminals."

ooperation Needed

The Secretary said his deportation program required better cooperation from state and municipal authorities and stronger laws. In several respects his position varied from that endorsed by the commission. He said the cases referred to by Oppenheimer in support of his charges arose prior to Doak's term, when James J. Davis was Secretary of Labor.

President Hoover is understood to be considering recommendations to ongress in December for correction of som econditions cited by the Wickersham Commission. Henry W. Anderson of Virginia and Kenneth Mackintosh of Washington refused to sign the report. In dissenting reports, they said they would not join in such a challenge of law administration without further personal inquiry. Nine commissioners signed.

Dishonesty Hinted

Immigration inspectors are described in the report as combining in themselves the powers of detective, inquisitors, judge and jury in determining the fate of aliens. Oppenheimer hinted at dishonesty in the immigration service, but not on a large scale.

Outstanding among the charges against administration of the law were:

That seizure and preliminary examination of aliens often is by methods "unconstitutional, tyrannic and oppressive."

That inflexibility of the law separating a deportable alien from his family "violates the plainest dictates of humanity."

That there is reason to believe many are now deported who might be permitted to remain if their cases were properly considered.

That patrol and immigrant inspectors "are insufficient in number and generally have not the necessary qualifications properly to use their tremendous authority."

That inspectors often act as detectives to uncover a case, then as court to try it and even as stenographer and interpreter during trial of the cases the yhave zealously worked up.

That immigrants are subjected to these and other hardships because many of them do not understand the language or the proceedings and are unable financially to employ attorneys to represent them.

Recommendations and suggestions were:

Some Suggestions

A Board of Alien Appeals should be established under the general lines of the Board of Tax Appeals to sit in final judicial judgement on all alien deportations, superseding the present Immigration Board.

The Labor Department should be deprived of alien deportation functions except those of investigation and prosecution of cases before the Alien Board.

A higher class of immigration inspectors should be obtained and some training provided for them. (Now many are not even questioned in Washington before their appointment.)

Discretion should be permitted the new board to let deportable aliens remain if deportation would result in unnecessary hardship to American families.

Attorneys should be furnished to aliens by philoanthropic societies interested in that work, to assure a fair trial before the board.

Agencies for prevention of smuggling aliens should be increased.

Aliens should not be deported to countries where their political opinions might cause their death or extreme difficulty for them.

In a seven-page summary, the commission absolved aliens from the general suspicion that the foreign born in this counrty have been "responsible for a disproportionate share of current crime."

Pointing to the problem of the foreign born, it added:

"No foreign born resident of the United States can ever be sure that he will not suddenly be made the subject of an administrative process, carried on without his knowledge by telegraph between an inspector in the field and a bureau in Washington, which will find some irregularity in his entry or in his conduct break the personal and property ties which he has established in the United States, and return him to the country from which he came, where he will not be welcome and where he has already found the conditions of life too hard to endure."

Oppenheimer's report relates many instances of hardship and cruelty. He complained raids were being unjustly made on seamen's dance halls and homes in search for aliens, that rights of citizens were infringed by immigration agents in their zeal; that preliminary examination of all aliens showed evidences that statements were extorted illegally and unfairly from ignorant witnesses; that agents used stool pigeons.

GOOD THOUGHTS FOR GOOD PEOPLE

When God chose David to reign over Israel, He indicated that it was the heart which must be right before any service to Him could be acceptably performed. . . David when feeding his father's sheep had no thought of possible kingship for himself, but was quietly and unobtrusively living each hour in obedience to God's commands.

Teach us to rule ourselves alway,
Controlled and cleanly night and day;
That we may bring, if need arise,
No maimed or worthless sacrifice.
Teach us to look in all our ends,
On Thee for judge, and not our friends;
That we, with Thee, may walk uncowed
By fear or favour of the crowd.

ASSEMBLY PARK
B. C. Whitmore.

The old-fashioned Gospel meetings at the Assembly Park are really bringing blessings to our city in spite of all the opposition of "the evil one," man's arch enemy. These blessings are also seeping their way into many individual hearts. Dr. Hogg, this week, has been putting the old-time, saving gospel in some new clothes for those who have come to hear God's blessed man "open unto us the scriptures." His message last evening, "Heart Troubles," was gripping and closed with a tensity seldom witnessed. God was calling in "the still small voice," The "bush" was burning. God was near. The Mason singers were at their best as well as Mr. Dibble. Dr. Hogg's last message will be Friday night. The records of eternity only reveal the good Brother Hogg has done for Dixon. Mrs. Dibble is the surprise for Saturday night and Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Dibble is thought by many to be the foremost lady minister of our present day in America. Her experiences and radio messages have proven her to be a power in the hands of God. And a great many will want to hear her messages. The Mason Singers will be absent Friday evening, but are announced for Saturday evening. Paul Rader, himself, will preach Sunday evening. Many are those who have been greatly blessed by his ministry over the radio each day at 6:30 to 7 A. M. and at 11:15 to 11:30 A. M. each week day over WLS, and his Sunday messages from the Gospel Tabernacle, and now a great many will avail themselves of hearing and seeing him in person. He will announce Sunday night how long he will be able to be here. It will be a great time for everyone who can make is possible to be there to hear this exceptional man whom the Lord is using in a great way to get the gospel or good news of salvation for sinners out to the half of the human race that is now without it, even to that half of the Dixon folks who are not getting the touch of the gospel at present. Pray for these meetings, come and bring the unsaved.

CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN

A favorable surprise awaits those who will be able to attend the services at the Brethren church next Sunday morning. There may be some others, but the one special surprise is that Mr. Hall Dautel, the piano artist fo rthe Assembly Park meetings, will give us at least two or three special numbers of sacred harmoniess at the 11 o'clock services. The minister's message, unless otherwise provided, for the morning service will be, "In Contact With Christ." As the electric wiring in your house bring in perfect light only as there is proper contact of those wires with the power house so one's life receives power and light for life's "whole duty" when it is in proper contact with the Powér House of the soul which is Christ. Why are folks indifferent, and church members impotent? Broken contacts! Have you examined your contacts lately, friend?, Everyone invited to hear Mr. Dautel and the sermon.

C. W. meeting at 6:30 with the union services to follow promptly at 7:30, at the Brethren church, with Rev. M. W. Hale of the Congregational church as the speaker.

The Sunday school meets at 10 o'clock. The lesson is about the great apostle, Paul. If not in Sunday school any other place, come with us. Classes for all ages.

Army Planes Crash During Maneuvers; 'Chutes Save Men

Selfridge Field, Mt. Clemens Mich. August 8 —(UP)— A gust of wind through the formation of 18 army pursuit planes yesterday sent two planes crashing to earth and a third hurtling to a precarious landing. Pilots of the wrecked machines saved themselves by a 400-foot parachute leap. Neither was injured seriously.

The gust tossed the wing tip of the ship of Lieut. Kenneth W. Osher Rockford, Ill., into the propeller of Lieut. Richard Crabb of Orlando, Fla., joustling Crabb's plan against that of Lieut. Robert W. Burns of Madison, Wis.

Crabb righted his ship and landed in a field.

Rat-Proof Ships To Check Disease Hope Of Health Bureau

Washington, Aug. 9 —(AP)— Making sea-going vessels rat-proof to check Bubonic plague and other diseases is advocated by the Public Health Service.

Ships so constructed that each compartment, section and subdivision is an isolated rat-proof space is urged by the service, along with sheatings, insulations, wire meshings and metal flashings to make vessels so inhospitable to rats they would be unable to find a home on the ocean.

Only an easy-going custom of ship construction friendly to rats, they argued, has permitted the rodents to spread diseases from port to port.

Experiments in England have succeeded in producing wool indefinitely by cutting pieces of live sheepskin and keeping them in vats containing a certain chemical solution.

BRICKLAYER WHO MADE FORTUNE IN BETTING IS DEAD

Thomas W. O'Brien Doped Own System To Beat Bookmakers

Chicago, Aug. 8—(UP)—The death of Thomas W. (Chicago) O'Brien, one of the turf's biggest gamblers, has recalled the days when he was a Chicago bricklayer. He died in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., yesterday after a lingering illness. The body will be brought here for burial.

O'Brien had a modest start for one who was later to develop into one of the nerviest gamblers in the world. He used to visit the racetrack when it rained and was too wet to hang a scaffold. For a long time he did not bet on the races, but after a careful study of prices, finally evolved the system which was to win him a fortune. He conceived the idea of betting on favorites to show, that is finish or better, and started out betting $2 and $4.

He built up a small bankroll with his system and when racing was barred in Illinois in 1904 ran a dice game in the loop. The police interferred frequently on complaints of losers who claimed his dice were "educated" and he went to continue his racetrack operations.

In the Campagne Stakes at Belmont Park in 1925 he bet $27,500 in wagers of varying sizes against $800 that Bubbling Over would beat Espino in a 2-horse race. Bubbling Over won and O'Brien and "easy money."

Backed Own Horse.

One of his biggest betting coups was on his own colt, Readity at New Orleans. The horse hadn't won a race in a year, but he dropped him in a spot near the end of the meeting and is said to have won about $250,000, betting his money with book-makers all over the country. He did not like mutuels and usually bet his money away when playing a mutuel track.

He never played tips. He doped his own horses, and he always liked to bet the favorite to finish third, although in later years bookmakers sometimes forced him to bet across the boards. There was nothing secretive about his betting, and he would tell a stranger how he had laid his money.

"Many bettors lose because they forget tomorrow is another day," once said O'Brien. "If they lose two or three bets they start over-betting and lose their judgment. They generally go in deeper. If I lose say for instance $30,000 I just put it down in red in my book and if I make it back in month I'm satisfied."

He is said to have had $25,000 on Twenty Grand to win the last Kentucky Derby and $25,000 on Mate to place, winning both bets. He was a great backer of Man o' War and is sair to have won a small fortune when that horse defeated Sir Barton in their match race in Canada.

Grandson's of Britain's King

Two famous royal playboys, though their penchant is for merry-go-rounds rather than gay night life, are shown here astride two strange steeds at a children's garden party at Marlborough House, London. They are George Henry Hubert and Gerald David, sons of Princess Mary of England, a daughter of King George.

"Comebacks" Barred By General Clinnin

Chicago, Aug. 8 — (AP) — Jack Dempsey and Benny Leonard may attempt comebacks if they choose, but not in Illinois. This is the stand of Major General John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois Athletic Association, and his colleagues.

General Clinnin said the commission would not approve either the former heavyweight champion, or the retired lightweight titleholder and cited the comeback attempt of Charlie White, a contemporary of Leonard. White was stopped by one of the Perlick twins of Kalamazoo, Mich. in two rounds.

"There will be no more sanctions issued for such bouts in Illinois" General Clinnin said. "I am sending a communication on this subject to all commissions affiliated with the N. B. A., and I think Illinois' attitude will be supported by the other members of the association."

It had been reported that Leonard would make his comback start in Chicago this fall.

What Averages Of Big Leagues Show This Week

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Chicago, Aug. 8—(AP)—Whatever else the New York Yankees lack, it isn't offensive power.

Semi- official averages which include Thursday's games reveal that the firm of Ruth & Gehrig is in control of five individual leaderships; that five Yankees are batting better than .300; that the Yank team batting average is .296 and gives them a tie with Washington and Cleveland for first place, and that Ben Chapman is in a class by himself for a base stealer.

Babe Ruth successfully battled off Al Simmons of the Athletics in the batting championship contest, but the Philadelphia siege-gun was creeping up. Ruth's mark was .384; two points off from last week, while Simmons increased his average five points to .382. Other leading regulars were: Webb, Boston, .366; West, Washington, .360; Morgan, Cleveland, .351; Goslin, St. Louis, .349; Gehrig, New York, .344; Cochrane, Philadelphia, .337; Averill, Cleveland, .336; Haas, Philadelphia, .326.

Gehrig was out in front in four offensive departments. He had battled home 11 runs, had 31 home runs, had scored 109 times, and led in total bases with 278. Simmons topped the list in hits with 163; while Earl Webb of Boston collected 51 doubles. Chapman had 43 stolen bases.

The Yankees had scored 712 runs in 104 games, to lead by nearly 100 runs. Philadelphia continued to lead in team fielding with .978, the same as last week, while St. Louis had turned out 113 doubl plays.

The pitching situation was merely a story of Bob Grove's drive toward 30 or more victories this season. The lanky southpaw was credited with another victory and had the fine record of 22 triumphs and two defeats.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

New York, Aug. 8—(AP)—Virgil Davis, the ball pounding catcher from Philadelphia, is back at the head of the National League batting parade. Semi-official averages which include Thursday's games show a .352 average for Davis while his clouting teammate, Chuck Klein, and Charles Grimm of the Chicago Cubs, are tied fo second place, nine points behind.

Behind this pair the other contenders are closely bunched. Harvey Hendrick of Cincinnati has .339, Terry, New York, 337; O'Doul, Bocklyn, .334; Hornsby, Chicago, Roettger, St. Louis, and Hogan, New York, tied at .331 and Cuyler, Chicago, 329.

Klein, the Philly outfielder, leads in three departments having 91 runs, 24 homes and 85 runs batted in. He is tied with Lloyd Waner of Pittsburgh for hits each having 144.

Rogers Hornsby leads in doubles with 35. Bill Tery of New York, and Pie Taynor of Pittsburgh share in triples at 14.

Frankie Frish of St. Louis finally has passed Cuyler in base stealing, completing 13 to Cuyler's 12. Chicago's hold on team honors is unchanged. The Cubs lead with a .294 batting average and a .975 fielding average.

Although Bob Osborn of Pittsburgh still holds his place at the top of the pitching list with five straight victories, Jess Haines of St. Louis, is rated as the best regular moundsman. He has recorded nine victories to two defeats for an .813 average.

SWEDEN BATTLES DRY LAW

Stockholm—(UP)—Sweden, too, has its liquor problem, in spite of the laws which restrict the sale of spirits. Thus the Swedish customs service have confiscated 867 gallons smuggled into the country during the first half of this year. During the same time eight trucks have been taken and 140 people questioned. This means a decrease, however, as compared to the first six months of last year, when 2,827 gallons were confiscated and 155 suspects examined.

Do You Remember

One Year Ago Today—The Canadian Amateur golf championship was assured an international final as C. Ross Somerville of London, Ont., champion in 1926 and 1928 and J. Wood Platt of Philadelphia, coasted to victories by comfortable margins in the semi-final matches at London.

Five Years Ago Today—The world's record for th e100-meter dash was shaded at Leipsic, Germany, when Kornig, one of Germany's finest sprinters, broke the tape in 10.3 seconds, one-tenth of a second under the official record established by Charley Paddock of U. S. A.

Ten Years Ago Today—Benny Leonard, world lightweight boxing champion, dislocated his thumb in a training bout, causing his world championship bout with Lew Tendler of Philadelphia to be indefinitely postponed as Leonard's doctor declared the champ would have to stay out of the ring for at least two months.

Sun Beau Favored To Take Handicap

Chicago, Aug. 8—(UP)—Sun Beau, biggest money winner on the American turf ,was an odds-on favorite today to win the $25,000 Hawthorne Handicap and boost his record total beyond the $350,000 mark.

Willis Sharpe Kilmer's 6-year-old horse already has amassed purse money totalling $330,044 and needs only a victory today to pass the Fench horse Ksar's synthetic mark of $335,340.

Ten horses were named overnight to start in the mile and an eighth race. Sun Beau had the heaviest impost of his career, 131 pounds, 19 pounds more than any other entry.

Despite the heavy weight, Sun Beau opened a 4-5 choice, with Willard Mack's Satin Spar second choice at 5-2 and Plucky Play, third in the Arlington Handicap, third choice at 5-1.

If all ten start, the race will gross about $1,000 and pay the winner approximately 24,000. Sun Beau, carrying 128 pounds, won the Arlington Handicap easily last Saturday, and the week previous, carrying 126 pounds, won the Arlington Cup and set a new track record of 2:01 4-5 for the mile and a quarter.

The complete field for the Hawthorne Handicap follows: Plucky Play, Ironsides, Dark Sea, Satin Spar, Morsel, Silverdale, Paul Bunyan, Battleship, The Nut and Sun-Beau.

CALIFORNIA WILL GET PUBLIC LINKS GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Both Contestants In Finals Today Are From Western State

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 8—(AP)—California had a big golf argument to settle with shots over the Keller Club course today.

Two of its star players, Joe Nichols, 15-year-old high school sophomore from Long Beach and Charlie Ferrara of San Francisco, were the only survivors in the final 36-hole round of the National Public Links golf championship and faced each other for the title.

The all-California final assured the trophy, emblematic of public free course supremacy in America, its first trip to the Pacific coast. Heretofore, it has been in possession of eastern players except the one time that Lester Bolstad took it to Minneapolis.

Nichols, because of his great comeback in his semi-final match with Ed Greenway of Seattle yesterday, was the peoples choice around Keller to win the crown, but a study of the golfing artistry of the two promised nothing but an even battle from start to finish. Both Nichols and Ferrara, who golfs in the evenings when he gets through driving steel rivets, were experienced shotmakers and had the temperament that makes champions.

Crushed Last Hope

The Long Beach school boy charged into the finals yesterday by crushing Al Priebe, St. Paul's last hope, 3 and 2, and then staging a stirring fight to come back and topple Greenway from the running Two down at the turn of the 18-hole match and three down at the golf to wipe out his pponent's lead and then win out on the final green when the Seattle star nervously muffed a one-foot putt. It was by far the most interesting match of the tournament.

Ferrara, one of the marked contenders for the crown since he helped the San Francisco team win the team championship, had far easier sailing than his youthful rival. In his quarter-final match he shot fine golf despite the rail-soaked condition of the championship course to defeat Horace Lacey of Little Rock, Ark., 4 and 3, and followed through by defeating Charles Albertus, Philadelphia's golfing printer, 3 and 1. A dead stymie on the 17th hole was the blow that kicked Albertus out of the tournament.

Ferrara and Nichols had 18 hole rounds of morning and afternoon play ahead of them today.

SPORT SLANTS

Since the National and American leagues are using a different baseball this year, contrasting sharply in its lively characteristics, the presumption is that both will be used in the world's series, depending on the scene of combat.

For example, on the basis of present prospects, the Cardinals will entertain the Athletics on their home grounds for the first two games, starting September 30, and put the National league ball into play. Then, Shibe Park for a continuation of the strife, the American league ball will be supplied.

This should afford an interesting opportunity for study and comparison. Unquestionably, the American league ball is livelier. The batting records and the home run figures reveal this quite convincingly but the facts are proof enough.

When the two leagues decided to curb the slugging orgies by establishing more balance of power between the patcher and batsman, both agreed on raised stitches. This favors the moundsman and has enabled him to put more "stuff" on his delivery.

The Nationel league, however, went a step further and thickened the cover. Since this ball does not begin to travel with the rifle shot speed of the old one, slugging percentages in the senior circuit have taken a tumble and home run hitters like Hack Wilson have lost their chief stock in trade.

The magnates profess to be immensely pleased by the change which has produced closer, better played games and eliminated the exaggerated ideas of high paid sluggers.

It remains to be seen, however, whether the American leaguers decide to follow the National's lead or choose to retain a livelier target for such notable attractions as Ruth, Gehrig, Foxx, Simmons and Averill.

HITTING THAT HURTS—

Take it from the Washington angle, it's the slugging of the Athletics, more than their superior pitching, that has put them so far in front.

"It appears that the Nationals have no tthe slugging power to make them an outstanding outfit," writes John B. Keller in the Washington Star. "They are well shaded by the A's in the number of doubles clouted and though they excel at triple making, they are far back of Connie Mack's bunch in hammering homers. The A's have made more than twice as many home runs.

"To get runs, the Nationals have to do a deal of successive hitting. The A's do not. There is much effort wasted by the Nationals in offense while the A's get great results from their socking of the ball. A homer following a brace of singles does much more damage than another single. And at getting those long drives back of the slighter hits the A's so far outclass the Nationals that there is no fair comparison."

RED SOX CHAMPION?

The Boston Red Sox have never produced an American league batting champion, and as a consequence there is some agitation over the race that Earl Webb, the reformed pitcher, is giving Babe Ruth and Al Simmons for this season's clouting honors.

Webb caromed around both major leagues until he received a chance to make good with the Sox. He has developed a penchant for hitting doubles and may break the record. No less an authority than Red Ruffing of the Yankees says Webb is one of the hardest men to pitch to in the league.

Daily Health Talk

GLAUCOMA

Glaucoma is a fairly common eye disease, which if not promptly and properly treated usually leads to progressive loss of vision with ultimate blindness.

The precise cause or causes of glaucoma are unknown. The disease in essence is a disturbed relation between the secretion and excretion, i. e., production and removal of the fluids of the eye, with resulting tension or pressure within the eyeball.

In some forms of glaucoma the disease develops gradually, in others the onset is sudden.

In the early stages, there is a decline in the sharpness of vision. One sees as if through a fog. When looking at lights one sees a ring of rainbow tints about them.

Together with this change in vision there is a sense of dullness and pain in the head. The pupil may also be irregular in shape, oval instead of round and different in size from that of the other eye.

Glaucoma is a disease of advanced life, affecting those between 40 and 70. Only rarely is it found affecting younger persons. Both eyes usually are involved.

The disease is found frequently among Jews. It appears rarely in healthy individuals, and more commonly in those suffering from arterio-sclerosis, heart disease, chronic constipation and gout.

Its onset appears to be prompted by insomnia, worry, improper diet and dissipations.

Glaucoma requires immediate expert medical attention, for failure to correct this condition may lead to partial or complete destruction of the sensitive tissue of the eye (the retina).

Most of the early symptoms of glaucoma are subjective. Only the sufferer knows whether he sees clearly or not, or if and how badly his head aches.

When therefore, suspicious symptoms such as those described appear, one should not waste time in self-diagnosis and treatment.

Asks Hoover If He Would Sign Bill To Legalize Wine, Beer

Washington, Aug. 7 —(AP) —Representative Lamneck, Democrat, O. today made public a letter to President Hoover in which he asked the Chief Executive what was described as a "simple question."

It was:

"Would you as President of the United States sign a bill legalizing the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer, if such a measure were to be enacted by Congress?"

Lamneck, an anti-prohibitionist, said, "in view of the deplorable conditions now present in this country and which have existed for two years, I am strongly impressed that modification of the Volstead Act would materially improve the situation."

DOCTOR ORDERS REST.

Los Angeles, Aug. 7—(AP)—Ethel Barrymore's tour of Southern California in the leading role of "The School for Scandal," will terminate with Saturday night's performance here.

E. J. Menneiley, manager of the theater where she is appearing said today the star's physicians had ordered her into complete retirement for at least a week. Menneiley added she planned to open her San Francisco engagement Aug. 17.

Scanning NEW BOOKS

By W. F. BROOKS

New York—The place Willa Cather has come to assume in the American literary arena is not one whit less justified because of her latest novel—"Shadows on the Rock." If anything her preeminence is more sure and more complete.

"Shadows on the Rock" transports one effortlessly to the Quebec that was—in 1697. Limpidly unfolded in Miss Cather's clear cut prose, the story of that little settlement in the last year of Frontenac's life becomes vividly real.

With Euclide Auclair, the philosopher apothecary, and his daughter, Cecile, one lives again through those dreary, yet colorful months in the winter, when the last boats from France have set out for home again and no sail might be expected to show on the wide waterway of the St. Lawrence before another July.

One experiences with Auclair the joy and relief of those early spring days, when news of King Louis and his glittering court at Versailles may soon again be received, along with fresh supplies and letters.

PIONEERING—

The Chateau St. Louis, grey stone with steep dormer roofs ,perched on the very edge of the cliff overlooking the river, shelters Auclair's patron, the Count de Frontenac, in whose service he had come out to Canada.

The lonely old warrior, waiting hopefully for an answer to his petition for recall, is Auclair's idol. Each possessing the characteristics lacking in the other, they seemed to supplement themselves.

For Frontenac, Auclair turned his back on the little apothecary shop in the Quai des Celestins, in Paris, where his father and his grandfather had lived their lives. For Frontenac, he endured the discomforts of the New France, and, for Frontenac, in the end, he gave up his last chance to onece again return home.

Miss Carther pulls together a dozen stories to make up her pattern. Old Bishop Laval, proud young Monseigneur de Saint-Vallier, Pierre Charron, Cecile, Father Hector Saint-Cyr, Jeanne Le Ber, little Jacques Gaux, the son of 'Toinette' and a score of others throw their reflections on the rock of Kebec to make up her picture.

The pioneer there is not a new one for Miss Cather. She seems to have been intrigued by it early in her career, but as she plays upon it her deft hand becomes even more steady and, although "Death Comes for the Archbishops" may have appeared faultless art, "Shadows on the Rock" contains, perhaps, a higher pitch of emotional quality.

Vilonet adventure, as usual, is not a part of Miss Cather's work. But the mood is epic, and a certain power flows smoothly in her customary gracefulness.

A RUSSIAN THEME— ....

Boris Pilnyak's new novel "The Volga Falls to the Caspian Sea," is quite a change from Miss Cather, but the Russian has an equal if dissimilar power.

Using an engineering project on the Volga to gather his characters, Pilnyak turns aside to follow their destinies, then, having laid bare their stories, he again takes up with the river and lets them flow along in the stream of progress the engineering plan contemplates.

There is a sharp parallel between the plan to turn the river backward, with its resultant destruction and sorrow, and the march of progress which overlooks and ignores those who cannot adapt themselves to the changes it requires.

Pilnyak has avoided propaganda as such, but it is present in various ways, all pleasant and pleasing to the taste, however.

A Galley of Gossip

In Julia Davis Adams' new book "Stonewall," which E. P. Dutton & Co. will publish in September, she turns from Europe to America for her material. Her new book is a child's biography of "Stonewall" Jackson. Mrs. Adams says that while writing it she was extremely fortunate in having access to the diary of a young boy who knew "Stonewall" in his youth. Mrs. Adams is the daughter of John W. Davis. It was while Mr. Davis was the American Ambassador to Great Britain that she gathered the material for two of her books, "The Swords of the Vikings," and "Vaino, a Boy of New Finland." Mrs. Adams' "Vaino,' librarians will remember, was one of the half dozen books considered for the Newbery Medal. She is the author also of a fine tale of William Tell.

"Mountains Are Free," also a candidate for the Newbery Medal, Cameron Wright who illustrates her biography of "Stonewall" Jackson got his inspiration from old prints and old photographs. His pictures are executed in a technique peculiarly fitting to the time of the story and are authentic in detail.

Marion Bullard lives in Woodstock, New York, the year round where she writes her tales about the inhabitants of her garden, dear friends of all the boys and girls who have read "The Somersaulting Rabbit," "The Sad Garden Toad," "The Enchanted Button," etc. Marions new book is a mystery tale, "Robbers in the Garden," in which she endeavors to untangle the mystery as to who killed the cat-bird's children and she has never done a better or a more original story. There are 23 colored and black and white illustrations, each done with Marion's own humor and charm.

Eugenia Eckford's "Wonder Windows" which she writes and illustrates herself was read before publication by many well-known librarians and teachers. Janice van Cleve of the American Library Association, Chicago, for instance, said, "I think the general idea of your book is excellent. The material is most interesting and the wiole should make a most attractive book." Rose Lee Hardy, Superintendent of Primary Instruction of Washington, D. C., says: "They are just what I would wish to put in the hands of teachers . . . You have something most worth-while and greatly needed."

Miss Eckford has been instructor of art at the following colleges: North Carolina College for Women, University of North Carolina, (Summer); George Washington University, Maryland State Normal. She is now with the Tower Hill School, Wilmington, D. C.

C. M. Bennett, whose new yarn is "Tim Kane's Treasure," and whose gory pirate tales have been devoured by boys ever since "Pedro of the Black Death," is himself a very mild-mannered English school teacher whose chief recreation in life is piloting parties of boys hither and yon on vacation tours. He says: " I am still teaching English at the Enfield Central School and working in spare time for a Science degree. I took a party of boys from my school for a holiday in Switzerland this spring. I am taking charge of a camp for 200 boys who are being sent to the seaside by the local education committee in July of this year, at Whitstable, in Kent. Little time for writing at the present but hope to write another boys' book this summer."

BOUND TO BE READ

Stuart Chase the economist has spent many months in Mexico and he emerges with a delightful book, "Mexico: A Study of the Two Americas (Macmillan and the Literary Guild) which contrasts a typical Mexican Indian village with the standard, small, machine-made city of the United States.

The contrast is on the whole damaging to our Middletown, with its compressed apartments, noisy radios, artificial amusments and high-pressure salesmen. It is highly favorable to the Arcadian native village of Tepoztlan, whose people make their own clothes, grind their corn on the hearth, pay no attention to the outside world and avoid the business cycle which at the moment is strafing all the Middletowns of America.

Chase likes nearly everything about the Mexican Indian: their children, "the best behaved on earth;" their wantlessness, despair of traveling salesmen; their dignity, their utter lack of pretense, their disregard of clocks, their magnificent inertia.

He does not like white Mexicans so well, nor the country's sanitation, reckless chauffeurs, dust storms, or coffee. Mexico City ,he thinks, has been too much corrupted by the Spaniards and by other European-Americans who wear smokestack suits, horrible derbies, and compulsory coats in summer.

We, in this country, he thinks, are floundering, trying to find the values that will give meaning back to life, but Tepoztlan has never lost these values.

JOSEPH L. JONES.

A. J. Cronin, a London physician, has written a rugged interesting first novel in "Hatter's Castle" (Little, Brown), a study of the disintegration of a family in a Scottish hamlet where an extra pot of porridge is a luxury and playing the piano on Sunday is a sin. James Brodie, a hatter, bulids a castle in which his wife dies after a life of drudgery, in which one of his daughters commits suicide and from which he brutally kicks the other because o fa love affair.

Brodie moves through the 605 pages as a domineering bully, terrorizing his family, consorting with a barmaid who elopes with his son; his business goes to ruin, tragedy overtakes all members of the family and Brodie becomes a drunkard. Cronin writes elequonetly in passages and sustains interest throughout the book. But it seems that sudden death and disaster are too prevalent.

Yet "Hatter's Castle" brings forward a new novelist of both weight and power—one hose second book doubtless will be smoother and briefer but still brimming with its author's sympathy for people and his undeniable gift for narration.

FEAR INCREASE IN UNEMPLOYMENT IN U. S. NEXT WINTER

U. S. Chamber Of Commerce Will Give Hoover Plan Of Relief

Washington, Aug. 8 —(AP)— Fearful of an increase in unemployment next winter, the United States Chamber of Commerce has undertaken a study of prospects with a view to presenting to President Hoover by September 1, a comprehensive plan to relieve the situation.

Silas Strawn, President of the Chamber, and Julius Barnes, Chairman of the Board, yesterday discussed the employment problem with President Hoover for nearly an hour. Later Strawn said a preliminary survey forecast there would be more unemployment in the coming months.

A thorough survey of unemployment conditions is being made Mr. Strawn said, through local organizations, while a committee has been designated to formulate recommendations on the basis of the findings.

Must Avoid the Dole

The prediction that "there will be more kinds of legislation for the dole than Germany and England ever heard of unless we do something at once," was made by the chamber head in stressing opposition to federal participation in unemployment relief. He said states, counties, and municipalities should care for the unemployed.

"It would be deplorable," Strawn said, "if this country ever reached the place where it voted a dole. When we do that, in my opinion, we have hit the toboggan as a nation. Unless we have accurate information and a definite plan for relief, Congress will be flooded with all kinds of fool proposals for relief."

Strawn expressed the view that the estimate by President Green of the American Federation of Labor that about 7,000,000 men would be out of work next January was somewhat exaggerated.

Henry I. Harriman of Boston, is Chairman of the Chamber Committee designated to devise an unemployment relief plan.

Ten Famous Triumphs Turf History Recalled

By MAX RIDDLE

Superstition runs rampant upon the turf. Perhaps in no other sport are hunches, secret tips and wise predictions so prevalent. Thus, through the magic of coincidence and superstition, a group of Illinois college students speeding toward Churchill Downs was furnished with the name of the victor in the 62nd Kentucky Derby.

"It was all so simple," one of them said afterward. "We were traveling at high speed and the water in our radiator was continually 'bubbling over.' So we bet on old Bubbling Over."

And Bubbling Over, true to the hunch of those students, tow-rowed the field to win the 1926 edition of the Kentucky Derby.

There was also a bit of predicting which helped the superstitious to pick Bubbling Over. Mrs. E. R. Bradley, mistress of Idle Hour Farm had always thought highly of Bubbling Over. It was she who had given the chestnut son of North Star III his name, even as she had always named all of the Bradley colts.

The Idle Hour Farm had three fine Derby prospects in Bubbling, Bagenbaggage and Boot to Boot, but Mrs. Bradley had always felt that Bubbling Over was the best of the three. As she was leaving America for a trip around the world Mrs. Bradley told friends that she would return in time to see Bubbling Over lead Bagenbaggage to victory in the Derby. Death overtook Mrs. Bradley while on the cruise, but Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage kept the faith.

Colonel Bradley will tell you that Bubbling Over was his greatest colt. The Colonel had bred him to be a champion. North Star III had long been one of America's greatest sires and Roaming Beauty, mother of Bubbling Over, was a fine brood mare.

Colonel Bradley had one of his traditional "Derby hands" in 1926. Aside from Bubbling Over and Boot to Boot, there was the highly regarded Bagenbaggage. Bagenbaggage suffered misfortune in the Preakness that year, but it did not detract from his ability.

Even with Boot to Boot withdrawn just before the race, Kentucky confidently expected the Bradley entry to run "one, two". This feat had been accomplished twice before. When Commander J. K. L. Ross' maiden Sir Barton won in 1919, Billy Kelly, a stable mate, finished second. Two years later, Colonel Bradley duplicated the feat with Behave Yourself and Black Servant.

Yet to win the Bradley entry had to overcome opposition of the strongest kind. The east's great champion Pompey, was on hand to represent W. R. Coe. If Bubbling Over could boast of victory in the Champagne Stakes and Nursery Handicap, Pompey could be more than proud of winning the Belmont Futurity, the Saratoga Hopeful and the U. S. Hotel Stakes. And there were other fine horses entered, such as Display, winner of the Preakness; Rock Man and Rhinock. The Bradley entry was quoted at 8-5, Pompey at 2-1 and Display at 4-1.

Bubbling Over had the misfortune to draw eleventh position from the rail. Despite this handicap he was away like a bullet to take an early lead. Jockey Johnson, who had been on Norvich when he won in 1922, rated Bubbling Over at a good hard pace. First Rock Man, and then Pompey, challenged his lead, but neither could get closer than a full length. When Pompey tired of the pace, Rock Man came again, but though he ran gamely enough Bubbling Over drew away.

Far back in the field Bagenbaggage was remembering the prediction of Mrs. Bradley. Seventh at the half, and apparently outrun, Bagenbaggage began slowly to improve his position. Overrunning the field, he caught first Pompey and then Rock Man. And as Bubbling Over crossed the line five lengths ahead of him, Bagenbaggage galloped into a three-length lead over Rock Man. Thus, the two gallant Idle Hour colts fulfilled the prediction of their mistress and scored, for the second time, a doube for the Bradley silks.

The Rochelle Business Men's Association was warned and asked to notify the police of the operation of two floaters who were cashing checks on the Stock Yards National Bank, of Chicago, supposedly drawn by Packers Motor Transit and signed by Fred McMahon and S. S. Steward. They cashed a check for $36.25 on a DeKalb store Wednesday night and were supposed to be headed for Rochelle to work during the corn pack. The warning came from Sergeant Larson of the State Police at DeKalb. Their mode of operation is to cash a check at a grocery store for $5.00 worth of groceries and say they will return for the balance of cash as they were cooking their meals in the jungles.

The description of the parties is as follows: One man—5 feet 3, very short, weight 150 pounds, very prominent red face, body red as far as his shirt is open, 30 years old, wears blue shirt, dark grey trousers, talks tough, wears gray cap bearing union drivers badge. This party cashed the check. His companion is the same height, weight 130 pounds, 30 years old, greasy complexion, deep voice, wore a grey cap and dark coat and pants.

The Rochelle Business Men's Association notified the police department, Midwest Canning Corporation, and posted warning bulletins in the business section.

Heart of Liane

©1931 by NEA SERVICE INC. NEA FICTION

BEGIN HERE TODAY

LIANE BARRETT, 18 and beautiful, tries in vain to forget VAN ROBARD, wealthy polo player, when his engagement is announced to MURIEL LADD, popular debutante. Liane's mother, CASS BARRETT, is an actress and it is during Cass's engagement in stock at a fashionable Long Island summer colony that the Barretts meet MRS. CLEESPAUGH, wealthy widow. When Cass goes on tour in the fall Liane becomes Mrs. Cleespaugh's social secretary. CLIVE CLEESPAUGH, the widow's only son, asks Liane to marry him. Clive cannot inherit his father's fortune unless he marries before he is 25. Liane accepts, agreeing the marriage is to be a matter of form only.

Robard, whose moods are changeable, asks her to break the engagement and Liane refuses. TRESSA LORD and her sister, MRS. AMBERTON, come to visit the Cleespaughs and Tressa, who wants to marry Clive, begins to make trouble for Liane. Tressa connives with a gang of blackmailers but a friendly police lieutenant, SHANE McDERMID, interferes. Later Liane is kidnapped to be held for ransom but is rescued by McDermid and Clive.

The wedding takes place on Christmas Day and the couple depart on a honeymoon in the south. News comes that Muriel Ladd has eloped with CHUCK DESMOND, newspaper reporter. Clive is always kind but knowledge that Robard is the man Liane loves drives the two into misunderstandings. After several weeks the couple return north. Clive devotes himself to business and Liane tries not to be bored by social duties. On a shopping trip she encounters Robard. By a ruse Robard persuades Liane to come to his apartment alone for tea. He begs her to go abroad with him. Clive arrives and takes Liane home. They quarrel.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XL

NOW that the bars were down, Liane rushed on, speaking recklessly. "Van wants me to go away with him," she declared.

"You didn't listen to him?" Clive clenched his hands.

"I told him I wouldn't. Oh, don't think me utterly bad. I'm not. Only when he calls I feel I must go. It's like a spell."

Furious anger smote Clive. Desperately he sought the right move. "Promise me you'll not do anything without consulting me," he urged. "As a friend. Nothing more."

She promised. She thought him a thoroughbred that night when, at the dinner party, he moved, spoke, laughed as if nothing had happened.

Old Mrs. Williams, a grande dame in black and silver, bent her head to them at parting. Behind her fan she whispered to Clive but quite audibly. "Such a charming child. We are all delighted with her."

Liane flushed. What would all these people think if they knew? She felt ashamed. Through her mind ran this thought constantly, "He sails on Tuesday. Perhaps I'll never see him again. What shall I do?"

Her lips twisted at the irony of it. If only she had waited a little while! She had believed this marriage would put a barrier between her and Van forever. She had hoped and prayed the spell was broken. It had not been. Surely this madness must be one of those deathless loves of which she had read. Browning and his Elizabeth had loved that way. Heloise and Abelard. Romeo and Juliet.

Monday found her desperate, dogged by a restlessness which would not let her go. Over the breakfast things she and Clive spoke of casual matters. Both were uneasy.

After he had gone she sat for a long time listless. The servants came and noiselessly set the place to rights. Her life ran on well oiled wheels, she reflected. There was nothing she needed to do. No one needed her—except possibly Van. Clive was utterly self-sufficient. He had his horses and dogs in the country. He had the business now to absorb his thoughts.

Even her mother no longer needed her. Cass was happy, independent, playing better than she had ever played before. She looked younger, less harried.

"I must see her," Liane decided.

• • •

CASS was just getting up when Liane arrived. The little apartment looked comfortable and shabby. The lovely green brocade couch Liane had given her was a curious anomaly in the small, untidy room. Liane saw the familiar room with new eyes, eyes that had somehow grown critical.

Cass entered, shrugging into her old red corduroy dressing gown. "I hate to wear that lovely padded thing you gave me around here, dear. It gets in such a mess." She apologized thus, carrying in the chipped tin tray with her breakfast. "Have a cup?"

Liane drank some of the steaming coffee. She felt steadier. She seemed to know now what it was she wanted. She wanted to tell her mother all her troubles.

"What's on your mind, baby?" Cass asked, watching the girl shrewdly.

Liane shut her eyes. Now for it. Now for the plunge. She said, "I'm going to leave Clive."

Cass set down her cup with great deliberation. "Why? You're not happy with him?"

Liane put out her hand in an impulsive gesture. "It's not that. Clive's splendid." She hesitated before she flung the words at Cass. "I love Van Robard. I'm going away with him."

Cass swayed a little. Her face had gone dead white. Liane thought she was going to faint. "Mother, what's the matter?"

She was bending over the older woman, shaking her arm. Liane left her and, flying into the tiny kitchen, brought back a glass of water.

Cass sipped it and shook her head. "Take it away. I'm all right."

Conscience-stricken at the effect of her news Liane sat down again.

"I'm sorry," she began contritely. "I didn't know it would be such a shock to you. I—I had to tell someone."

The color was coming back into Cass's pale cheeks. She shook her head like a swimmer freeing himself from the bondage of the waves. In a dull voice she said, "There's something you've got to know. I should have told you long ago. God forgive me for a miserable coward."

Her eyes, her tone, struck terror into the heart of the girl. Liane trembled. "What is it? Oh, mother, don't look like that! Tell me."

• • •

WALKING like an old woman, like someone who has been dealt a mortal blow, Cass rose. She went to the shabby, littered desk in the corner. There was one drawer which Liane knew had always been locked. From this she drew a roll of papers held together by a rubber band.

"These," she said, tapping the roll, "will explain. I will show them to you in a minute." She sat down heavily.

"First of all you must know this. You are not my child at all. You are my sister Luisa's daughter."

Liane whispered, "She wasn't—wasn't married?"

Cass's laugh was short and bitter. "Yes, she was married right enough. The license is here. I'll show it to you in a minute. The man broke her heart. She died when you were born. That's why I hate the whole clan," she finished bitterly.

Still Liane did not understand. "What clan?" she asked.

Cass threw the words at her. "The Robards," she cried.

The girl winced as though someone had struck her. "You mean—"

"Van's father was Dirk Robard. So was yours."

Liane flung her hands to her eyes. This was unendurable. She said abruptly, "It's not true. Mrs. Amberton told me long ago." She struggled to remember.

"What's not true?"

"Van is not Dirk Robard's son. He was adopted." Fanny Amberton's words came back to her now. "He married Van's mother in 1913. That was three years after I was born."

Cass murmured, "I don't believe it."

"It's true," Liane persisted. "I don't remember what Mrs. Amberton said Van's real name was but he was Dirk Robard's adopted son."

"It may be so," Cass mused, half to herself. "I was in England in 1913, just before the war started. Mother was taking care of you then."

She whirled on Liane. "But it doesn't alter the main facts of the case," she cried. "Half brother or step brother, he's still forbidden to you. He's wicked—conscienceless."

Liane asked, "Why did you hate him so?"

"Because Dirk Robard was wicked, cruel. He met Luisa in Baltimore where she was playing in stock. He was much older—15 or 20 years. He persuaded her to have a secret marriage. They went somewhere on the eastern shore. Luisa didn't tell us until a few months before you were born. By that time he was tired of the arrangement. He was having an affair with some New Orleans beauty and wanted Luisa to divorce him. Poor child! She was so young, so bewildered. She wrote me and told me about it. I brought her home. She died 10 days after you were born. The doctor said she had no will to live."

"And you never heard from my—my father?" Liane whispered.

• • •

CASS tossed her head. "Luisa didn't want us to let him know where she was. He never, so far as I know, tried to find her. When she died I mailed him the death notice. He sent lawyers to see us. He had heard there was a child but wasn't sure. I lied to the lawyers. I was afraid they might take you because you were his own flesh and blood. There was some clause in his will, I believe, to the effect that if an heir should appear such a claim was to be thoroughly examined. I think he always suspected there had been a child, but he couldn't prove it. Tom Barrett and I had been married the year before. It was easy for me to pretend you were our daughter.

Her voice softened. "And then I felt, too, that you truly belonged to me. I cared for you from babyhood. I loved you as my own. I was justified in keeping you from that devil."

Liane's eyes were brimming. She put her arm around the older woman. "Of course you were," she soothed. "And when it was so hard, when we were so desperately poor you must often have repented your decision to keep me."

Cass sat up straight. "Repented? Never! You were mine and I meant to have you."

Liane laced her fingers nervously. "Clive knows this?" she asked.

Cass nodded. "I told his mother shortly before you were married. I told him. It was only right. They had to know."

They sat for a few moments in silence. Then Cass broke out again, "You'll never go to Van Robard now?"

"I don't know. I don't know. My mind is dizzy from all this."

"Liane, you can't. You wouldn't hurt Clive so. The scandal—"

The girl moaned. "I hadn't thought of that."

"You must. Forget this man. He's had dozens of affairs. The women of his own world understand him. You made the mistake of taking him seriously."

Cass added, "Tell me I did right to hold you for my own. Tell me you forgive—" She was on her knees.

"Mother, dearest!" It was Liane's answer.

Cass wiped her eyes presently. "Heavens, I must rush! They called rehearsal for this afternoon."

Together they straightened the place. Liane, a towel pinned over her dove colored frock, made the bed and wiped dishes. Constraint held them after their mutual burst of emotion.

"Promise me you won't do anything without telling me first," was all Cass dared to ask on parting.

Liane walked up Broadway, a slim, distinguished figure. Some impulse, born of the old trouper habit, caused her to stop and buy a paper at the corner. Like a needle to a magnet her eyes were drawn to the headline, "Millionaire Killed In Motor Accident."

The name leapt at her, dizzyingly black, "Van Robard."

PUPPY LOVE

They're lap dogs now, in a clumsy, sprawly sort of way, but their mistress won't be cuddling them long. For despite their wrinkled faces they're very young puppies and one of these days will be making the rounds of the English dog shows as pedigreed bulls. They're shown here with their owner at the South London kennels.

NEW YORK'S MARINE FIREMEN GO ON PARADE

This impressive marine pageantry, with fountains of water soaring skyward to give the effect of a pyrotechnic display, was staged by New York fire-fighting boats in the East river. That's famous Brooklyn bridge looming majestically in the background. Note the tremendous heights to which the fire-boats toss their columns of water.

U. S. ARTILLERY'S NEWEST "LOUD SPEAKER"

A formidable addition to Uncle Sam's armed forces, 14-inch railway guns like the one shown above now lend new strength in the defenses of the Panama Canal. One of these powerful pieces is capable of scoring hits with 1200-pound projectiles on moving vessels 25 miles away. The guns are mounted so that they may be hauled from one side of the isthmus to the other and made ready for firing within six hours.

JOHN GARLAND POLLARD GOVERNOR OF VIRGINIA, SAYS: "Education is no substitute for work. It only enables us to direct our work more intelligently.

"After having become educated, the eternal question will be, 'What use are you making of what you have learned?' It is a disgrace to have an education and not use it for the benefit of your community.

"The man who acquires knowledge and keeps it for himself and to himself is an intellectual miser as despicable as the selfish hoarder of money. What really counts is not what we know—it's what we DO with what we know.

"In the final day when we stand before the Judge of all the earth to give an account of deeds done in the flesh ,the question will not be what you knew, but what you DID with what you knew."
